Lending into Retirement

Retirement Age

All applicant(s) must confirm their intended retirement age.

We consider it reasonable that the applicant(s) could continue to work up to the age of 68 if in a manual role, and 72 if in a non-manual role.

If the loan extends beyond the lower of the applicant(s) intended retirement age or the above maximum ages, the applicant must evidence how the loan will be maintained post-retirement.

We accept the following repayment options into retirement:

- Pension - private or state. If the applicant is due to retire within the next 10 years and the loan will still be in place, the latest private pension statement or state pension entitlement must be provided to confirm expected income. The income must be sufficient to support the applicant's current income.

If the applicant is due to retire in more than 10 years, suitable evidence of contribution to a pension must be supplied, i.e., deductions on payslips, illustration from pension supplier.

If the applicant cannot evidence affordability into retirement, then the loan term must be reduced to end by the lower of the applicants declared retirement age or 68/72 depending on their occupation.
